Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Why Not Pave San Fernando Boulevard North of Los Feliz

THE city attorney was instructed last night to start proceedings for the establishment of an ornamental lighting system on Glendale avenue from San Fernando road to Monterey road.

This improvement, along with the paving of the street, is of interest to all Glendalians as it will be of great benefit to almost the entire city.

The next improvement which is much needed is the paving of San Fernando Boulevard north of Los Feliz to the Burbank line. With this done and the ornamental lights extended Glendale would be able to handle incoming traffic in a proper way.

* * *

THIS would give us well lighted and paved streets starting at the city limits at nearly the same place, namely Glendale Avenue of Los Angeles, and each running to different sections of Glendale.

* * *

THE application of the Pacific Electric Railway company for a bus permit should be given as much consideration as the city officials have given to other applications for the same privilege. The fact that the applicant is a large corporation or that it also operates the electric lines should not react against it. There is one item in favor of granting the permit to the P. E., that being the certainty of having the bus lines in operation within a short time.

* * *

IF the Pacific Electric was applying for a bus franchise to run for a number of years we would not be in favor of granting the request. A permit is quite a different proposition for it is revocable at any time and the provisions can be such as to protect the public interests to the fullest extent.

Bus lines to take care of the newly built-up districts are badly needed. It is now up to our city councilmen whether or not we get them.

NEW TEMPLE PLANS NOW ARE READY

Lots on Central Are Out of Escrow, Fred Deal Reports

WORK ON BUILDING

Present Structure May Be Sold to Aid in Financing Work

Glendale's Masonic association now holds title to the two lots recently purchased on Central avenue for a new and enlarged Masonic temple to take the place of the present one on Brand. Fred Deal, president of the association which holds title to Masonic properties, reports that the papers are now out of escrow and the association is ready to proceed.

Next week the new building committee of which W. A. Tower is chairman, and the finance committee, will have a meeting and begin functioning. Until after that meeting no prophesies can be made as to how the project will be worked out.

The necessity of a new Masonic temple has become critically urgent, Mr. Deal says, during the past year in which five new Masonic bodies have been organized, viz.: White Shrine of Jerusalem, De Molay chapter, Pyramid of Scios, Shrine club and new U. D. lodge.

The sale of the present temple will go far towards financing the new one, the association figures, and it is probable that a bank appraisement will be secured in the near future. It has been estimated that the bare lot is worth $50,000, and if no market is found for the temple standing upon it, no building in the city will salvage as well, in Mr. Deal's opinion. No plaster was used in its construction inside or out, and its demolition will be merely a matter of lifting out bricks that are now worth about three times as much as their original purchase price and which will be very valuable material for the new temple. It was built thirteen years ago when construction costs were very much lower than now.

COMMUNITY TRUCK FOR CHILDREN TO VISIT BOWL

A. Carroll and Dr. C. M. Cagle to Provide Transportation

Director Tucker of Community Service reports that A. Carroll and Dr. C. M. Cagle have agreed to provide a truck which will carry 25 to convey Glendale children from here to the Hollywood bowl tomorrow for the special concert to be given at 4 o'clock. The truck will leave the high school grounds at 3 o'clock and the children will be well chaperoned.

A good many auto owners are planning to take children but have not reported to Mr. Tucker. As there are many children whose parents do not have autos, those owning machines who will go and who will have room for children other than their own, are asked to report to Mr. Tucker at the chamber of commerce without delay.

BILLBOARD ORDINANCE IS DRASTIC

New Measure Is Designed to Keep Disfigurement Out of City

HEAVILY ASSESSED

One Dollar Per Square Foot Yearly With Special Permit

The Glendale council decided last night to pass an amendment to the billboard ordinance making the license for boards over a certain size of this nature in Glendale, $1 per square foot per year, and requiring the builder to take out a $2 building permit and to paint the permit number on every sign erected.

In the discussion of this question Councilman Horn said:

"I am opposed to any sign boards being erected in the city. The realtors of the state are endeavoring to do away with even the small signs on building lots and homes."

"The company of Foster & Kleiser, one of the largest organizations of the kind in California," stated City Attorney Morrow, "has stated that it will soon begin the construction of boards of this nature in Glendale."

"If they want to build signs here these signboard men will have to pay for the privilege," stated Councilman Davis. "Burbank has an ordinance such as we are suggesting for this city and it seems to me we are about as big as Burbank."

Councilman Davis stated that he would bring in the suggested ordinance at next Monday night's meeting.

EAST SIDE CONTRACT POSTOFFICE REPRESENTED BY MANY EAST SIDERS

Postmaster Quietly Signs Up Mrs. Mae E. Myton at 612 East Broadway, While Citizens Are Working for Bigger Branch

TO BE IN PHILLIPS AND HORN OFFICES

Firm Donated Space She Declares; Petitions Are Circulated Today Seeking Nullification of the Deal by Her

Some of the residents of the east side of Glendale are up in arms over the alleged efforts of Postmaster Ripley D. Jackson to locate a contract office on the east side of the city. These residents feeling, according to statements made by them, that they are entitled to a larger branch office and believing there is a chance of securing the larger office, are trying to hold up the establishment of the small contract office.

Another point in this fight was gained yesterday by Postmaster Jackson when Mrs. Mae E. Myton of 1504 East Maple street signed for a contract office at 612 East Broadway.

"The postoffice people have been after me for four days to sign this contract," said Mrs. Myton this morning. "Yesterday was the last day I had to sign, and as the firm of Phillips & Horn, where I am located, offered to donate the space if I would undertake to handle the contract office, I finally agreed to sign."

In order to offset this the residents of the east side of town started petitions out bright and early this morning, asking Mrs. Myton to reconsider her decision in this matter and to turn down the proposition made by Postmaster Jackson.

"There is nothing I can do," said Mrs. Myton this morning. "The contract has been signed and is already on its way to Washington, I suppose. If the people of this side of town want to do anything they will have to take the matter up direct with the postal authorities in Washington."

The question of locating some kind of a postoffice in the east side of town was brought up several months ago. At that time C. A. Stuart, proprietor of the Glendale pharmacy, put in two bids at different times for a contract office. One bid was for the office at the Glendale pharmacy at Broadway and Glendale and the other was at the pharmacy operated at that time by Mr. Stuart, at Acacia and Glendale.

Nothing was done in connection with these bids, according to Mr. Stuart, until a short time ago, when Assistant Postmaster Halleck informed Mr. Stuart that his bid for the office at Glendale and Broadway had been accepted. Mr. Stuart, for various reasons, turned the offer down. Since that time, Postmaster Jackson has been endeavoring to place a contract office in the east side of the city.

When interviewed this morning on the postoffice question, Mr. Stuart said:

"After my two bids for contract offices were not acted on months ago I decided I did not want to have close business relations with Mr. Jackson, especially of the nature that would have been necessary if I had accepted the contract for the contract office.

"A short time ago when we took the matter of the east side postoffice up with Postmaster Jackson, he informed us that the two bids I had put in for contract offices and all the correspondence pertaining thereto had been lost in the mails, notwithstanding the fact that these bids were made at different times and that the correspondence on this matter had covered weeks of time.

"Weeks after I had placed the bids for these contract offices, Congressman Lineberger informed us that the bids in question were not on file in Washington, and that if they had been presented to the postal authorities at least one of the bids would doubtless have been accepted."

According to Mrs. Myton, the contract which she signed is for two years at $75 per month, or $900 per year, the figures stated in the bid which was made several months ago by Mr. Stuart.

Police to Enforce Street Traffic Law

P. E. BUS IS BEFORE THE CITY AGAIN

City Manager Instructed to Welcome Plan for Consideration

TO EXTEND SERVICE

The matter of the extending of the Pacific Electric's bus line so as to take care of a greater part of Glendale is again before the city council. In answer to a communication from that company, City Manager Reeves was instructed to reply, stating that Glendale would be glad to consider anything in the way of better transportation that is for the best interest of Glendale.

The letter from the Pacific Electric is as follows:

"This company has had a number of requests for additional bus service in the city of Glendale, together with requests for changes in our present bus operation.

"In view of the fact that the city of Glendale has not been provided with an adequate bus service, this letter is being written to ask whether or not the council of the city of Glendale would be agreeable to going into the matter with this company with a view to our providing such a service.

"Should your report be favorable, we would be very glad to confer with yourselves and others delegated for that purpose at any time."

The communication was signed by O. A. Smith, passenger traffic manager of the Pacific Electric company.

PARKING LAW AMENDMENT IS ORDERED

One Hour Limit in Brand and Broadway Business Districts

POLICE SUGGESTION

Misdemeanor to Stop in Streets Outside of Parked Cars

An amendment to the Glendale parking ordinance was ordered Thursday night by the Glendale city council. According to the instructions given to the city attorney by the council this amendment will call for a time limit of one hours in the parking of cars on Brand boulevard between Colorado and California, and on Broadway from Central avenue to Louise street, this one hour limit to continue from 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night.

That the time has come for a revising of the present 3-hour parking ordinance was the consensus of opinion of the council, as stated last night, and the limit of one hour between the points and the hours stated was made on recommendation of Chief of Police Fraser.

In the preparation of this amendment the city attorney and the chief of police work in conjunction in order that the present and future needs of the city may be taken care of.

This ordinance, it is understood, will be presented next Monday night.

An added feature to be embodied in this ordinance is a section that will make it a misdemeanor to stop in the streets of the business section outside or behind machines that are parked at the curbing. This section was decided on, on the statement of Chief Fraser that many motorists make it a practice to stop out in the street behind other machines while they go into the stores and make purchases, thereby blocking traffic along those streets.

GLENDALE LIGHTING ASSURED

Proceedings Are Started by Glendale City Council

NO PROTEST HEARD

C. A. Stuart Reports on Work of Securing Signatures

The city attorney was instructed Thursday night by the Glendale city council to start proceedings for the establishing of an ornamental lighting system on Glendale avenue, from San Fernando road to Monterey road.

When the matter was brought up last night a letter was read from City Engineer Dupuy stating that in the district there are 28,450 feet frontage, and that 10,400 feet had signed for the lights, the owners of 1650 additional feet stating that they would not protest the improvement.

C. A. Stuart, chairman of the lighting committee of the Glendale Advancement association, stated that he had made a personal canvass of the street and that, although a majority of the property owners had not signed the petition, practically all of those seen, with the exception of those who had stated they would not protest, had signed. Many of the property owners are away at this time. He said there isn't a chance in the world for a protest against these lights being gotten up, and he urged strongly that the council order the initial step in this work being taken without delay.

"We have been working long and hard on this matter," said C. W. Ingledue, "and we feel there should be no delay in putting this work through. We can assure you that nothing in the way of a protest will be brought in in regard to these lights. The people along the street are more than anxious that this improvement be made."

The motion to start this work was made by Councilman Horn and seconded by Councilman Hall. The vote on this matter was unanimously in favor of starting the proceedings.

ROTARY MEETING WELCOMES KARR BACK TO FOLD

Tells of Things That Happened at St. Louis, Mo.

The Rotary meeting held Thursday noon in the Citizens' building auditorium was especially enthusiastic. A great part of this was accounted for by the return to Glendale of the club president, George B. Karr, who has been on an extended trip in the east.

Mr. Karr represented the Glendale Rotary club at the International Rotary convention held at St. Louis, Mo. At Thursday's meeting he gave a very interesting report on the convention.

Among the visiting Rotarians present were Ross Blakey of Alva, Okla.; Henry W. Lewis of Jerome, Ariz.; Arthur Heinman of Pasadena; E. B. Wyman of Los Angeles; Charles L. Pease of Pasadena and Leonard F. Collins of Burbank.

S. M. Dick, owner of the Baldwin Shirt company, was the guest of Mr. Karr at Thursday's meeting.

L. A. HARDING TOUR ERROR CORRECTED

General Committee Consents to Follow Glendale Outline

ISSUES CORRECTION

On Los Feliz to Brand, North to Broadway, Then East

BY GERTRUDE GIBBS

The latest information in regard to the route which will be followed by President Warren G. Harding and party in passing through this city to Pasadena August 3, was secured Thursday by Secretary Sanders who attended a meeting of the general committee of arrangements. That committee agreed that an error had been made in describing the course through Glendale and promised that it should follow the line indicated by the local committee. To give more positive assurance, the following letter was addressed to Mr. Sanders for publication in the local papers:

"Dear Mr. Sanders:

"We regret to note that a slight error was made in the copy sent to Glendale relative to the routing of President Harding's party. This should read: 'The party will move on Los Feliz road to Brand boulevard, north on Brand to Broadway, east on Broadway to Eagle Rock.'

"Please give this all the publicity necessary in your local papers.

"Yours very truly,
"IDA R. KOVERMAN,
"Secretary."

Mr. Sanders reports that in addition to the president's car, nine autos will be provided to take care of guests, dignitaries and officials who are with the president. He will be efficiently guarded by a corps of secret service officers in autos and on motor cycles and no one will be permitted to approach his car or to shower him with flowers or other attentions. There will be no opportunity to give the president an official reception because he will not leave his car nor make any stop, but pass through the city at the rate of six miles an hour.

These secret service officers will precede the presidential party and sweep the street clear of all traffic. Even the post office band will not be allowed on the boulevard unless in advance of the secret service corps. It will probably be stationed beside the reviewing stand, to be located at some point on Brand where the original committee of sixty composed of representatives of the chamber of commerce, city council, patriotic, civic and social organizations, will be assembled.

For the reception in Los Angeles the general committee is sending 25 tickets for Glendale's quota on the general reception committee, which is to function at the Ambassador hotel at 11:30, August 2, and these tickets will probably be dispensed by Mayor Spencer Robinson, chairman of the local committee.

The president will review the Los Angeles pageant at Figueroa and Washington, and if the holders of the 25 tickets desire to participate in that, a place will be reserved on the side lines for five decorated cars carrying the Glendale committee, near the reviewing stand.

W. L. Twining, chairman of the local committee on decoration, states that the state colors, orange and gold, will be mingled with the national colors, that every lamp post and every trolley post will carry a spear from which the national flag will be suspended, and that the effect is going to be very beautiful.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS OPENING GAMES OF CROQUET TOURNEY

Glendale Union high school was the scene of a croquet tournament held yesterday afternoon at four o'clock between the high school team and the Cerritos Avenue team. The high school team proved victorious. The match was held under the supervision of Miss Shattuck, who with Mr. Butterfield, has charge of the high school play grounds during the summer.

The contestants were formed into teams of two players each. The first match was between Benson Moore and Willard Ball of Cerritos and Leo Zimmerman and Ross Kenny of the high school. Hugo Sprenger and Shedley Gibson of Cerritos versus Glen Clasp and Toland Harris of the opposing high school team formed the second match. The high school boys were the victors in these contests.

The tournament is under the supervision of the Community Service which is endeavoring to promote out door sports among the young people of Glendale during the summer. A similar croquet contest was held Wednesday afternoon on the high school campus.

SAN FERNANDO NEXT

Winner Will Be Matched for the Last Game of the Year

Glendale, Lankershim and San Fernando ended the league race tied for second place. The first playoff comes Sunday when the Glendale nine travels to Lankershim. The winner of this contest plays San Fernando the following Sunday to determine who takes second place. Sundays game at Lankershim ought to be a good one as the Glendale bunch will be out to avenge that walloping they got last Sunday when they were caught in an "off" day, which spoiled the chances for first place.

Walt Heidler will again be on the mound against his strong opponent, Minkler, who will twirl for Lankershim.

The team leaves Brand and Broadway at 12:30, Sunday.

PRESS CARRIERS BEAT PASADENA POST BOYS

Glendale Daily Press carrier boys' baseball team again defeated the carriers of the Pasadena Post in the second game played between these two teams. The game was held at Pasadena on Thursday and resulted in the defeat of that team by a score of 8 to 3. The next game the Glendale Press carrier boys will play at Alhambra.

A feature of the game on Thursday was the inability of the Pasadena boys to steal second, due to the splendid fielding of Catcher Mahannah and Second Baseman Apsit.

BROWN & NIBLO ENJOY WELCOME

Brown & Niblo, who recently moved here from Los Angeles and opened up the Coffee Shop, at 112½ South Brand, have been enjoying a big business and are of the opinion that Glendale is indeed the "fastest growing city in America," judging from the patronage they have received.

They have put in the best equipment to be found, including a charcoal broiler for steaks and chops, and this feature is proving extremely popular. Both gentlemen were formerly with Tait's and Herbert's of Los Angeles and San Francisco, respectively, and know how to deliver the goods.

A girl never feels more important than when she is getting married, and a man never feels more conspicuous.

They will return to Glendale the first of next month.

Almost always at the market season there is a strike on, but this year, she says, there has been nothing to interfere with business in the market centers. She has found plenty of very attractive merchandise and the bulk of her purchases are now enroute. She plans to get home next week and will stop enroute in Kansas.

George Karr Is Not Without Credit In Home Town

Said the Parsons (Kan.) editor under the caption "Many Parsonians in Glendale, Calif., when George Karr showed his returning smile at home:

"Living in Glendale, Calif., is not so bad for a Parsonian, according to George Karr, formerly of this city who is now spending a couple of weeks with old friends here. The reason is that it is easy to see Parsons people. Many tourists stop en route for a visit and then there are eleven families of former Parsonians now residing there.

"Also according to Mr. Karr, the life of a movie actor is not all income, but includes also a lot of out-go. For instance, Mr. Karr who makes the Baldwin shirts, recently received an order from William Duncan, the movie star, for 18 shirts, the order coming to more than $200. There was one peculiar feature of the order, however, in that there were nine distinct patterns, each made in duplicate. The reason is that in the rough work of making pictures one shirt might become soiled or torn and it is necessary for it to be replaced in exact duplication so that the picture will not be spoiled."

BY RAYMOND A. FAGAN

Several hundred delegates are attending. Officials of the National Petroleum Marketers' association, which called the meeting, said ways will be devised to wipe out "an artificial market created by a group of refiners over which the independents have no control" and to bring about the four cent reduction at filling stations.

HOWARD SUGGESTS BOY SCOUT PATROL

W. B. Chicago Makes Success Of Civic Opera Venture

[By Associated Press]

CHICAGO, July 27.—Chicago has gone into the grand opera business, and after a year's operation, the financial statement shows that the city is making a success of it.

Backed by a regiment of guarantors, who are to be found in all walks of business, commercial, industrial and social life, as well as by the general public, the Chicago Civic Opera company has become almost as truly civic as a public library or a public park. The admission charged for performances, which is moderate and considered popular, though insufficient as yet to pay the full cost of entertainment, is the sole mark distinguishing the Chicago civic opera from other civic institutions with a general appeal.

There are 2,200 guarantors who stepped to the front when Harold F. McCormick and Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick contributed their holdings to the then Civic Opera association.

It is now announced by Samuel Insull, president of the Opera company, that when the deficit for the first civic opera season, that of 1922-1923, was finally determined and made known, the guarantors responded immediately and unhesitatingly and fulfilled their pledges without demur.

Mr. Insull says: "Grand opera in Chicago thus has passed into a stage of civic grand opera, supported by as representative people as would be met by the tax collector gathering names for city government. The method of support closely approximates the municipal suite subsidies provided operas abroad, the sole difference being that in Chicago a preferred list of taxpayers of all professions underwrite opera, while abroad, in many instances, financial losses are liquidated by general taxation."

TRAINING CAMP ALUMNI FORMING

[By Associated Press]

CHICAGO, July 27.—The ground work for an Alumni society that bids fair to be the largest in the United States in the course of time, is being laid by those who are organizing and preparing to conduct the Citizens Military Training camps in the various states this year.

The announcement of the Alumni society's organization says:

"The men who attended the first voluntary camps in 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916 joined in forming the Military Camps Association of the United States, and this is the real alumni society of all who believe in the "Plattsburg idea" of General Leonard Wood, and who have been trained in the citizens' camps.

"This year the men in each camp are invited to group themselves as a part of the nation-wide organization to be known as the Citizens' Military Training Camps Alumni.

"In order to make this effective the candidates from each county will select their own captain. These, in turn, will select their own state captain and these state captains will, in turn, select a corps area captain."

Charters will be issued to each county company, but the real organization of the alumni body will take place at the camps during this summer.

The shipment was sent to the Gales Creek, Seaside and Tillamook hatcheries and the fingerlings will be distributed in coast streams.

THIRD CANDIDATE ENTERS GLENDALE RACE FOR FAME

Mrs. Ethel Kennedy of West Palm Drive Passes Her Film Test

Glendale's applicants for fame in the greatest motion picture contest ever conducted are coming in and learning the rules governing the competition.

Mrs. Ethel Kennedy of 527 West Palm drive, whose photograph appears above, is Glendale's latest candidate for stardom. Mrs. Kennedy has had the privilege of a film test under the direction of one of the world's greatest directors. It is said that she possesses a great deal of ability in dramatic work, for she was the recipient of much favorable comment by those who had a part in making the film.

Mrs. Kennedy is not the only Glendale contestant to reach the enviable position which she has attained. Little David Appleton Gallagher was the first to come into the limelight. He, too, made a most favorable impression upon his audience. Next to follow him before the critical scrutiny of the camera was Eveline Thompson, a winsome little miss of ten years, who will have her film test shown in conjunction with those of Mrs. Kennedy and David Appleton Gallagher at the T. D. & L. theatre in the near future.

With such display of talent being brought to the public notice, Glendale may expect soon to see featured on the silver sheet at least one of these aspiring candidates who have received their start with the aid of the willing help of the contest representative, Dwight K. Mitchell, who is to be found in room 2 of the Glendale Daily Press.

Half of the time allowed for the contest has expired, the zenith has been reached. However, the competition swings on, gaining momentum at every moment. Even now it is not too late for any son or daughter of Glendale to come in and make a place. You may start now and yet come out ahead.

If you would like to take advantage of this opportunity, make no further unnecessary delay, but come in as soon as possible.

Remember! Room 2, Glendale Press—now!

GATEWAY HAS DIVERSIFIED DIVERSION

Feature: "Vengeance of the Deep."

Comedy: "All Over Twist."

Second episode of Ruth Roland in "The Haunted Valley" (Every Friday).

Special: See yourself in the movies. Moving pictures taken the opening night will be shown tonight.

Added Attraction: Esther and Victoria, accordion players and character singers.

At the Organ: L. Earl Abel, featuring "Rio Nights."

A Record: Harold Lloyd in "Safety Last," which closed last night at the Gateway, was the first picture that ever ran in Glendale for seven nights. Playing to capacity houses every night; breaking all records for attendance and number of days played.

"Vengeance of the Deep" is a picture extraordinary and will justify the highest expectations when its comes to the Gateway Theater beginning today. It is a melodramatic romance of the South Sea pearl fisheries. Yet it is more than that for much of the action transpires on the ocean's bed and the submarine scenes are the most amazing ever filmed. It is, in fact, the first drama actually filmed on the bed of the ocean. Written and directed by A. B. Barringer, who also perfected the unique diver's helmet seen in the picture and which made it possible to photograph the undersea episodes, the cast is equally fine. Ralph Lewis, Virginia Brown Faire, Van Mattimore, Harmon McGregor, William Anderson, "Smoke" Turner and Maida Vale give capital portrayals of the colorful roles allotted them.

'HEART RAIDER' AT T. D. & L. UNTIL SATURDAY

That Agnes Ayres is one of the most popular stars of the screen is amply evidenced by the great success of her new Paramount picture, "The Heart Raider," which will be the feature at the T., D. & L. Theater today and Saturday, with Mahlon Hamilton as leading man.

The story is one of absorbing interest and there is much relishable comedy. At Palm2 Beach, Muriel Gray, played by Miss Ayres, is making an effort to create a favorable impression on John Dennis, a bachelor, portrayed by Mahlon Hamilton. But the latter believes that Muriel is rather frivolous, and his indifference wounds Muriel deeply. She is determined however, to force Dennis to take her in his arms, and makes this her boast. Muriel at first is a miserable failure as a vamp, but finally makes good her boast.

There is an excellent supporting cast which includes Charles Ruggles, Frazer Coulter, Marie Burke and Charles Riegal. Wesley Ruggles directed the picture, the scenario for which was written by Jack Cunningham, who made the adaptation of the Emerson Hough novel, "The Covered Wagon." Charles Schoenbaum was the photographer.

AMERICANS ON REPARATION WORK

For Four Years Little Group Has Handled Finance at Paris Office

[By Associated Press]

PARIS, July 27.—While the United States government has limited its activities in the reparations embroglio to an official observer, and, since the Versailles Treaty has watched the problem as it became more intricate day by day, there has been a little group of Americans here for the past four years who have taken anything but a minor part in the vast work of the reparation commission.

This unheralded little group constitutes the staff of accountants with the commission, and is headed by George P. Auld, formerly an officer of the United States navy, who holds the post of accountant general. He is responsible directly to the commission for the completeness and accuracy of all financial records having to do with the receipt and disbursement of money and commodities handed over by Germany.

The position of Mr. Auld with the commission is entirely individual, as he has no connection with the United States or any other government. His staff of about 20 Americans comes under the same classification.

The task of the accountancy department is one of the most difficult of the commission's work. To strike its daily and monthly balances, it must deal with ships, livestock, abandoned war material, rolling-stock, coal and coke, dyestuffs, and a score of other commodities, as well as the actual cash payments of German gold marks. When the balance sheet has been tallied, it is necessary to render the totals in marks, pounds, francs, lires and dollars. The commodity valuations have been made in nearly all the currencies of Europe, as well as in dollars.

When currency payments are made, they are immediately converted to gold through the dollar rate, with roughly four marks equalling one dollar. The accountancy department receives the New York exchange rate for 20 or 25 countries by cable each day, and with these rates as a basis, daily, weekly and monthly parities between the various currencies are established. At the end of each month a complete report is made, showing the amount Germany has paid to date, and how it has been distributed among the Allies.

Much of this work is done by the American staff. One computes the value of coal from the Ruhr; another determines the worth of livestock in francs, dollars and pounds; another reduces locomotives to marks and then to lires, while one quotes ducks, geese and chickens in dollars, guilders and crowns.

At the end of 1922, the accountancy department under Mr. Auld had whipped the miles of figures into an intelligible report, showing that Germany had turned over to the Allies a grand total of $1,982,000,000. Of this sum $454,000,000 was in cash; $889,000,000 in commodities, and $639,000,000 in state properties and ceded territories.

The ships she had parted with totalled two and a half million gross tons, valued at $177,000,000. Of rolling-stock she had delivered 4,552 locomotives and 127,000 wagons, worth $207,000,000. The livestock included 529,000 head, exclusive of poultry. This was given a valuation of $40,000,000. The coal, coke and lignite delivered exceeded 48,000,000 tons, worth $237,000,000, the dyestuffs totaled 23,000 tons, valued at $15,000,000, and the miscellaneous commodities, too numerous to classify, were determined to be worth $134,000,000.

The selection of Mr. Auld to head the important accountancy bureau of the reparations commission was made after he had spent several months in Paris as assistant financial advisor to the Peace Commission. Although only 42 years of age, he had served a number of years in the United States navy, and was given the task of organizing the cost and financial control maintained by the navy department in about 100 large industrial plants doing work for the government before the Armistice. When asked to take a post with the reparations commission, he resigned from the navy to accept.

The inter-allied accountancy organization now has bureaus in Berlin, Essen, Weisbaden, Budapest and Upper Silesia. The Paris staff consists of about 100 persons, made up of Americans, French, English, Italian and Belgians.

SANTA MONICA RESTAURANTER OPENS IN CITY

Mack McCowen and wife of Santa Monica have moved to Glendale and have purchased the restaurant business at 207 West Broadway. After closing the business for a couple of days to make much needed improvements, the restaurant is now open for business and is offering a menu that should attract people from all over the city.

Before coming here, Mr. Mack McCowen was engaged in business at Santa Monica, and had one of the best places in the city. He has been in the catering business for many years, and promises to give Glendale another good eating place.

Recent arrivals from the east in Glendale are Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sindorf of Milwaukee, relatives of Rev. H. Kringel, the Lutheran church pastor. They expect to remain a week. They arrived via the Great Northern, thence to Vancouver, San Francisco and Los Angeles. They will return via the southern route.

ADVANCE SALE OF PERSHING DINNER TICKETS PLANNED

Due to the great demand for tickets to the reception and banquet for General Pershing to be held at the Ambassador hotel at 7:30 p. m. Monday night, July 30, the committee in charge has decided to place on sale in advance a portion of the tickets tentatively allotted to the various organizations under whose auspices the entertainment is given, reserving the remainder for sale at the Ambassador next Monday night. Moreover, by this means it is thought any delay at the Ambassador on the night in question may be obviated.

Accordingly, the committee announces the following places at which tickets may be secured in advance by all members of the American Legion, regardless of the post to which they may individually belong:

At post No. 13, Pasadena; post No. 27, Long Beach; post No. 8, Los Angeles; Victory post No. 54, Los Angeles; Sunshine post No. 251, Los Angeles; and post No. 43, Hollywood.

Members of the National Guard may secure tickets from Captain Eskridge, 527 Story building; members of the chamber of commerce, from the secretary, Frank Wiggins; members of the Association of the Army of the United States, and others who find it more convenient to do so, may apply to Major Frank Drake, 625 Detwiler building.

The committee urges the purchase of tickets well in advance of Monday evening, by the members of the organizations under whose auspices the entertainment is given. This will avoid confusion and delay Monday night, and will the better enable everyone to be present and seated previous to the moment of General Pershing's entry in the banquet hall.

The committee is happy to announce that arrangements have been made whereby tickets for 25 disabled veterans of the Civil war; 25 disable veterans of the Spanish-American war; and 100 disabled veterans of the World war, may be provided tickets without cost to them. They will be honor guests of the organizations under whose auspices the entertainment is given and as such will be seated comfortably near the speaker's table, where they may see and hear General Pershing to the best advantage.

The 150 tickets for disabled veterans have been turned over to Colonel Arthur Williams, U. S. A. (retired), for distribution to those for whom they are intended. Accordingly, such disabled veterans as desire to attend should apply as follows: Civil war veterans to Major Aubrey, Patriotic hall, 1816 South Figueroa street; Spanish-American war veterans to Major E. E. Kirk, Washington building, Third and Spring streets; veterans of the World war, to Claude Whitney, 246 South Hill street.

A great many applications have been received from members of the Association of the Army of the United States, the American Legion and others, for permission to bring with them their father, brother or personal friend. This permission has been granted in every case, and it is hoped many others of a similar character may be received, especially so since General Pershing has expressed the desire to meet with citizens interested in the national defense.

While no ladies were at first invited other than those who are actual members of the American Legion, exception has now been made in the case of members of the American Women's Overseas league. In addition, ladies who actually served overseas, and widows and mothers of those who lost their lives in the military service during the World war, are cordially invited to attend. All these may secure tickets in advance at any of the places stated above, or at the Ambassador hotel next Monday night.

So far as known, there are only three person in Southern California who have been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest mark of distinction within the gift of the government, for courage in the face of the enemy; these are: Colonel Paul F. Straub, medical corps, U. S. Army (retired), 1900 Vermont avenue, Los Angeles; Corporal D. E. Higgins, formerly U. S. marine corps, 303 Higgins building, Los Angeles; and Sergeant Louis Van Israel, formerly 9th Inf. 2nd div., 246 South Hill street, Los Angeles.

The committee has accorded to these men a place of honor at the speaker's table near General Pershing.

Definite information has been received by the committee that General Pershing, accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Major George C. Marshall, Jr., will arrive at the Southern Pacific station from El Paso, at 7:50 p. m., Monday night, July 30. The committee has requested the officials of the S. P. system to make every effort to assure that General Pershing's train shall arrive on time. With this in view, F. S. McGinnis, general passenger agents, Southern Pacific, will go to El Paso to meet General Pershing to accompany him to Los Angeles. This makes it practically certain that everything connected with the entertainment will go off on time, and as planned. Accordingly, all are urged to arrive at the Ambassador at about 7:10 p. m., and to be seated at their places by 8:00 p. m.

Saving the Flipper a Problem for American Military Schools

SOCIETY might turn its attention for awhile from the flapper to her twin brother, the flipper.

It seems to be pretty thoroughly established that the flipper is in need of just as much saving, if not considerably more. The premise is that the flapper has been plucked from the burning, but the flipper still flips on.

A flipper, in the parlance of the day, includes all species of the genus male from the first long pants to the first ballot. He is declared to be the offspring of prevalent parental indulgence, a condition which educators inform us is a besetting American sin.

Little Willie, aged four, is told it is bedtime.

"I won't go to bed," says he, and crawls under the davenport.

"Isn't he cute?" says Mother.

"That young man has a will of his own," states Father proudly.

Way Ahead of Father

Willie stays up for another half-hour, parental indulgence starts its path of laxity, and the son of the house receives his first impression of contempt for constituted authority which does not constitute.

"He takes after his father," as a saying, passed out a decade or more ago. Today the American youth is so far ahead of his father that the latter might as well be scratched. All of which, if one stops to analyze it, is creditable to neither father nor son.

"The lack of discipline, training, system, punctilio and common every-day etiquette in our young men is one of the most deplorable of existing conditions to which is no doubt due the existence of a general disregard and disrespect for constituted authority," states one writer.

A right serious indictment that, and one which is pretty hard to refute. A host of parents may rise up and cry objections, or the charge may not even be challenged. "The old man," as he is dubbed irreverently by the flipper, has had so much dust thrown in his eyes by his offspring that he is more likely to shake his head and remark fatuously, "I'm glad my son is not like that."

> Any system of education to merit approval must promote physical development, patriotism, good morals and love of law and order. The system best calculated to contribute to good citizenship is that which produces harmoniously and simultaneously healthy mental, physical and moral development. The influence of a military education in this direction is readily apparent.

>
> —Ira L. Reeves in "Military Education in the United States."

Home Training Needed

Discipline and obedience and politeness, along with a lot of other character developers, should begin at home. The stern old Spartan father and even the French peasant of today had the right idea. A disrespectful son was so but once. The punishment was sufficient to deter him from a second attempt. The American father forgot about the "spare the rod" axiom so many years ago that his impotence in compelling obedience and respect is lamentable.

Contempt for parental authority steps quite naturally into contempt for any authority. Municipal, county, state and national laws—excluding, of course, those which prescribe punishment for a felony—are regarded by the flipper about like father's "no"—well meaning, but scarcely to be obeyed. Who ever saw a youth drive a motor car within the prescribed speed limits? To the flipper a highway ordinance is a "scrap of paper."

Dodging Prohibition

One might go further and point to the highest law of the country—the Constitution—which contains a recent amendment; also a certain act which provides for enforcement of the amendment. Drawing conclusions from that, however, proves little. New York's Governor showed recently that in breaking the Volstead Act we are running true to the old order and that "like father, like son," still prevails.

There is agreement on all sides that the American youth has gotten pretty well out of father's hands. No one seems to agree upon the cause of it, and the public, as Kipling once told us we do, "turns to the instant need of things." In other words, we are seeking a remedy for an admitted condition.

Dr. Lyman Abbott in advocating a solution once said:

"Though I am a member of nearly every peace society in America, I am rapidly reaching the conclusion that a system of compulsory military service for a limited term would be of incalculable benefit to the young men of America and to the country as a whole."

Since the World War all thoughts of compulsory military education have been anathema. Just why is not apparent. Some hundred of million Americans should know by now that sometimes war is inevitable and that when it comes lucky is the nation which is prepared.

The whole trouble is that the public has a vast misapprehension of the real purposes behind a military education. Most people insist upon seeing it as only war training, and that's all wrong.

Good Military Schools

"The advantages derived from a military life for young men and boys are so many and so evident that parents should grasp them eagerly for their sons," states one authority on the subject. "If the situation were such as to compare the work of a good military school with that of a civil school of high grade, or to watch the results obtained under those widely different systems, it is believed our military schools would be crowded."

The writer is not thinking in terms of West Point or of compulsory military education, but in advocacy of the military school which takes a youth and prepares him for life or college. It is a system which, he states, "is calculated to develop self-reliance, a manly and independent nature, personal neatness, etiquette, polished and refined manners, a wholesome respect for law and order, and the highest type of the American citizen."

What the Flipper Lacks

In the modern military school, in fact, much less time is spent on mere drill than the public imagines. The average uninformed individual seems to consider the training as entirely physical, designed simply to make a man sit and walk erect and develop more or less precision of habit. The reverse is the case. The military school aims rather to train a youth in initiative, self-confidence and ability to do well all that his hands find to do, to take care of himself, to keep all the rules of hygiene rather than study tactics and to be more familiar with the respect and regard due constituted authority than with the manual of arms.

Some one has called military schools "Missionaries of Manhood." Judged by this definition given by Charles W. Larned, noted educator and historian, the title is apt:

"The military school trains for character and for the State. It systematically develops the body, and it educates the mind along a consistent line for the double purpose of clear thinking and effective practical work. It exercises the character in discipline of action, habits of subordination to lawful authority, strict personal accountability for word and act, truth-telling, integrity and fidelity to trust, simplicity of life, courage."

In analyzing that definition it is pretty apparent it embraces about everything the flipper lacks.

Out of the Mouths of Babes

A four-year old youngster while at supper requested his brother to help him to something and was told he should say, "If you please." So he said, "Pass me some of that, if I please."

'THELMA' PROVES NOVAK TRIUMPH AT GLENDALE

Her ability to register refinement in all her acting has been one of the principal reasons for Jane Novak's rapid rise to stardom. Her most recent starring vehicle, Marie Corelli's great romance, "Thelma," produced by Chester Bennett, on exhibition at the Glendale Theater, consolidates her position as one of the foremost young stars of the screen.

Ever since Miss Novak made her entry into the silent drama, comments have been heard on all sides remarking on her singular ability to make whatever character she was interpreting stand out on the screen in a refined manner.

Miss Novak graduated from Notre Dame convent and a short time later joined a St. Louis stock company, where she remained two years. For one season she remained in vaudeville and musical comedy. Her first appearance in motion pictures was with W. H. Clune in his production of Harold Bell Wright's story, "Eyes of the World," where she scored a distinct success.

Bill Hart then selected Miss Novak as his leading woman in "The Tiger Man" and "Selfish Yates." She was later engaged for a series of Thomas H. Ince productions, followed by contracts with Marshall Neilan and other producers.

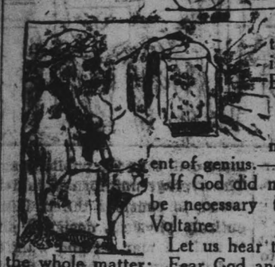
Truths in Epigram



The only way to have a friend is to be one.—Emerson.

Patience is a necessary ingredient of genius.—Disraeli.

If God did not exist it would be necessary to invent him.—Voltaire.

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man.—Old Testament.

DEMAND FOR WOOD'S RECALL

Demand for the recall of General Wood from the Philippines is not a strange development. It is exactly that which might have been expected to grow out of the situation in the islands. Indeed, it would not be strange were all the resignations and uproar a mere pretext for discrediting the governor-general. It may be said fairly that to accomplish this end would require far more than the word of island politicians who long have yearned for more power. It is questionable if they had not been given too much before the arrival of General Wood. Doubtless he upset some of the schemes of his predecessor, an official who had demonstrated complete unfitness for the place.

The politicians of the Philippines have for a long time maintained a publicity bureau at Washington. It has been liberal with its output. Its avowed purpose has been to win independence for the islands. That it has served to promote the cause is doubtful. There never has been any question of the independence of the islands, to be tendered freely as soon as the natives have become fit for self-government. That they are not yet fit, and that under the leadership of the native politicians, they never could become fit, is the belief of every observer whose opinion is regarded as worthy of consideration.

There are smart and educated Filipinos. The great mass of population retains still the child-like mind of the untrained Oriental. The masses would be helpless in the hands of the clique bent on seizing leadership. The presence of General Wood doubtless is an obstacle in the way of certain unscrupulous, or at least badly deceived, aspirants for power. This fact might be cited as an excellent reason for the continued presence of General Wood.

AGAINST PASSIVE RESISTANCE

Berlin has heard that the inter-Allied High Commission has issued a sweeping ordinance aimed at throttling German passive resistance in the Ruhr. The response thus far is that this will tend to strengthen resistance.

There have from time to time been efforts to show that in this matter France and Belgium stand alone, and may not depend upon the support of England. The action of the commission tends to controvert such view.

What may be the outcome of the struggle in the Ruhr nobody may say. To the outsider it would appear that the policy of the Germans has been the worst that they could have adopted. They seem to go on the theory that they will be able to wear the French out, and to lessen the determination to bring Germany to terms. On the contrary, there is not the slightest indication that France intends to withdraw, or to abate in any part the sternness of the conditions imposed. Apparently it would be firm even were it absolutely alone. The action of the commission shows that it has sympathy and support.

There was a time when Germany could have received a hearing on any proposition of settlement that indicated good faith, and a desire to pay such part of the reparations as it was capable of paying. It made no such proposition. Just now the prospects are that no compromise would be considered. Passive resistance tends to prolong conditions most undesirable for Germany.

COMMUNITY GROWTH

Los Angeles has for a year held third place among the cities of the United States in building. It has been surpassed only by New York and Chicago, the largest two American cities. Recently it has exceeded both of these in the number of permits, but not quite equalled them in the total valuations. New York and Chicago both erect far higher structures than are permitted in Los Angeles. They are forced to do this by the excessive cost of land, and lack of space. In Los Angeles the price of land is relatively low, while there is indefinite room for expansion.

The facts are interesting because they show that here in southern California there is being created a metropolis likely in a short term of years to be as populous, and commercially as important, as the other places of the east and middle west. But this is not the full significance of the record.

Los Angeles is the center of a rich community. The prosperity indicated by its development is shared in by a coterie of surrounding towns and cities. These are distinct from Los Angeles, with independent governments, and in instances with productive areas between, but they all are part of the same growth; each is embraced in the "financial white spot." A visit to any of them reveals an activity in proportion to that prevailing in Los Angeles. Everywhere there is the sound of the artisan's hammer. New homes are seen in every direction. These separate cities grow, not only rapidly, but definitely along plans that include promotion of beauty. The people read of Los Angeles and wonder, but all the region about is marked by as rapid and as desirable a change.

JOKING WITH THE LAW

Recently a woman was duly reported as having been arrested for speeding. She was sentenced to jail. For impertinence to the court she was given two days extra. Then she was released because of certain activities she was due to perform for a semi-public purpose of promotion. The understanding on the part of the public was that she was to come back later and serve her term. She was not required to come back. As a matter of fact the whole episode was what is known as a "frameup." The woman, in this instance, had committed no offense, had not been under arrest, and was not being punished. She was merely being permitted to acquire a little publicity which it was deemed would make her more effective in an advertising way. It was a case in which the end was supposed, somewhat jocularly, to justify the means. That it did so must remain a question.

It would seem that wholly without the introduction of jest, light enough is made of the law. The statutes lend themselves but imperfectly to the purpose of deceiving. It is not infrequent for a sentence to be passed upon a flagrant offender, and then suspended. This is the equivalent of no penalty whatever. The effect is bad. It indicates the exercise of an undue influence. It embitters the person haled to the bar for a similar crime and given the limit, or given a severe sentence the terms of which must be met in full.

The effect of the mock trial of the woman in question must be precisely the same as though she had deserved the penalty. So far as the public generally is aware, she did deserve the penalty, and was without reason, excused from paying it.

TRAFFIC VIGILANTES

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

"During my life I've seen 100 dead bodies thrown into the Tiber and nobody minded."

Such was the reply of an average Roman citizen during the papacy of the Borgias when asked why he had not reported having seen two men take a body from a horse and throw it into the river, the body having proved to be that of one of the Borgia princes.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

That sentence shocks us, but we read daily of the deaths that occur in every city in the land through careless motoring and like the citizens of Rome "nobody minds it."

To be sure every so often somebody makes a speech on the subject and the papers give it publicity, but we go right along allowing the ignorant, the vicious, the braggart and the bully to drive machines and run down pedestrians. Apparently we do not regard manslaughter as manslaughter when it is committed with as expensive a machine as an automobile; the only people who hold drastic views on that subject are the families of the dead.

The last person of prominence to rise in meeting and suggest ways and means for reducing the mortality lists incident to reckless driving is C. S. Mott, vice president of the General Motors. Mr. Mott wants a corps of traffic vigilantes, ordinary citizens who will volunteer to report reckless and vicious drivers who defy the law and endanger the citizenry. Mr. Mott also suggests that the ignorant drivers should be taught and some means devised whereby the reckless and vicious can "be brought face to face with the law and penalized for their infractions of it."

Very pretty, but the way we in America handle the traffic problem is about as effective as breaking lions and tigers with powder puffs. The writer happens to be afflicted with a direct mind painfully capable of seeing facts, and just now it sees this fact.

If we want to stop traffic accidents we will have to do something to stop them. And that something is not a general release of conversation, but the institution of a sane method of weeding out undesirable drivers.

Certainly we should educate the ignorant drivers, but we should do it before we allow them to touch a steering wheel. They do it in France; what is to keep us from doing it here? Nobody can go out on the streets of a French city and drive a car until he has taken a course of instruction in driving and passed an examination. In this country any idiot who feels so inclined can, unless consideration for his life restrains him, drive a car through the crowded section of a city as soon as he knows how to make it move.

You can't pilot the smallest motor boat without a government license, but you can drive the biggest car that was ever built without a knowledge of traffic rules and regulations, and an automobile in unskilled or reckless hands is fully as great a menace to human life as a motor boat in the same kind of hands.

Why do we permit people to take so lightly the responsibility of driving? And why again do we permit those, who have by their conduct proved that they are totally unfit by temperament and mental habit to handle a car, continue to hold a license and drive?

It is a simple matter to revoke a man's license once he has demonstrated that his vanity is greater than his regard for human life or his respect for the law. But the bully continues to defy traffic regulations and nobody thinks of punishing him adequately.

Why not? If this were done there would be no need of a corps of traffic vigilantes. And if it is not done some day there will likely be a corps of traffic vigilantes with views similar to those held by the vigilantes that once took charge of criminals in this same state, and methods calculated to restrain the reckless and criminal bullies.

Answer: Either word is correct but usage favors meets.

"Is" or "Are" With "Company?"

Anonymous, Chicago: "Does the word company require a singular verb?"

Answer: There are some words that are followed by either a singular or a plural verb, depending on the meaning of the sentence. Company is one of them. If the individuals spoken of by the word act independently, a plural verb, such as are, should be used; as, The company are discussing their budget. If they act as one, a singular verb had ought to be used; as, The company is about to move into new quarters.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

Somebody says:
"Feeling happy today?"
And you reply:
"Why not?"

That is, if you are out of pain and out of jail and not out of sorts.

* * *

Of course, if you are out of sorts, that is likely to be your own fault.

Because we have all sorts of sorts within us.

And we don't need to get out of them unless we choose to.

Right thinking will keep our stock of sorts full and plentiful.

* * *

If you are in pain, you can't very well be happy.

Because happiness and pain go ill together.

And so pain is one of the tragedies of the world.

Where it is long continued.

And yet many individuals have been able to smile through pain and suffering.

Which means that there are splendid souls in the world.

Not to be shaken or soured by physical ailments.

* * *

And if you are in jail, the chances are you will not be happy.

Because jails are often filthy and airless.

The association is not stimulating.

And the reflections are likely to be morose and sorrowful.

* * *

But if you are out of pain and out of jail, and if no great grief has come to you, then you may be happy if you will.

For there is fresh air to breathe.

Food to eat.

Sunshine to revel in.

Flowers to see.

Friends to get and keep.

* * *

It is not necessary to go about grinning.

Or proclaiming your state of mind from the housetops.

But you can greet persons with good nature.

Help them if you can.

Do your task with spirit.

And indulge in the pleasures of hope and promise.

Of which the world is full.

* * *

So the next time you think you are unhappy, and you feel you should be happy, ask yourself "why not?"

And then take all things into account.

Consider the little and fretful things and see how readily they can be dissipated.

And take account of the blessings of life and do not count them lightly.

* * *

Do not count possessions only in terms of material things.

Count possessions in terms of health and spirit and opportunity and work and friendship.

Count possessions in terms of spirit.

For those are the only abiding treasures after all.

* * *

You do not have to insure them.

You do not have to lock them up in a safe deposit box.

You do not have to wrap them with moth proofs.

They are with you always.

No one can steal them or take them away.

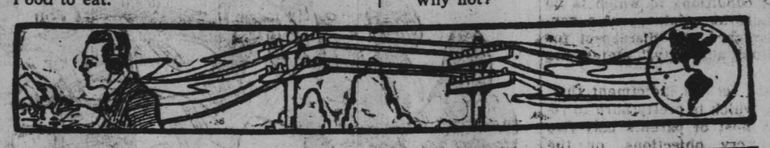
The only mischance is that you may lose them.

And that will be altogether at your will.

* * *

Happy?

Why not?



Songs of the Poets

In the Garden—By Ernest Crosby

I spied beside the garden bed
A tiny lass of ours,
Who stopped and bent her sunny head
Above the red June flowers.

Pushing the leaves and thorns apart,
She singled out a rose,
And in its inmost crimsoned heart,
Enraptured, plunged her nose.

"O dear, dear, rose, come tell me true—
Come, tell me true," said she,
"If I smell just as sweet to you
As you smell sweet to me!"

WOMEN FARMERS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

EARLY this summer four fresh complexioned English girls stepped off the steamship Antonia at Quebec. There was nothing to indicate in their neatly tailored grey costumes that they were four recognized agricultural experts who had come to America from the British Isles.

These British girl farmers won their trip to Canada in an open competition among the farmers' clubs of Great Britain. The idea originated with Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways. He offered the Thornton scholarship, open to competition among English farmerettes, these scholarships carrying with them a visit to Canada with courses of instruction at the agricultural colleges of the Dominion.

The ages of the girls range from fourteen to eighteen, and their selection as scholarship winners was made after severe examination.

During their stay in Canada the girl will specialize in courses dealing with crop production, stock raising, dairying and bee keeping.

One of the significant features of this age is the entrance of women into business. The offices of every great city are full of girl stenographers and secretaries, the clerks in department stores are girls, there are many girls among factory workers, there are women salesmen and book agents and quite a few women doctors and lawyers. Just a few generations ago women had no such opportunities, and about the only career open to a girl was housekeeping. Whether the change is for the better or the worse has been much discussed, but there is no doubt that the change is here and that the present tendency is growing.

If a woman is going into business at all there is much to be said in favor of farming.

There are doubtless as many women who are born with the love for an open air life and with a taste for handling stock and raising crops, as there are men with such an inborn tendency.

The woman, the one destined to be the mother of the race, needs a strong and vigorous body quite as much as does the man. And there can be little doubt that work in the open fields and sunshine, and plenty of vigorous exercise is a better preparation for motherhood than sitting all day at a typewriter, or standing behind a counter selling ribbons, or even exerting one's energies in changing clothes, going to afternoon teas, eating chocolates, or frequenting jazz parlors.

That the woman is "the weaker vessel" is due more to her environment and training than to her natural constitution. Among the savages and in primitive communities women do even more work than men. And work is not a cruelty nor a hardship when it is work that one likes. Indeed the happiest part of the human race is composed of those who daily engage in wholesome labor, and the most wretched part of humanity is made up of them who either have nothing to do or will do nothing.

The ideal woman is not only beautiful but strong.

Agriculture is the oldest and perhaps the most wholesome of all the occupations in which a human being can engage, and there is no reason why women should not share in this. This does not mean that they are to be beasts of burden. With proper education and training a woman can engage in the business of farming and find in it a happiness and contentment which it is becoming more and more difficult to secure in the crowded city.

ALOOFNESS

[Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph]

A recent compilation of the "billions" contributed by the United States government and American citizens to the relief of the rest of the world during and since the war included immense sums loaned at interest. The total of our beneficence is sufficiently impressive without including sums that should have no place in that category. For instance, it is stated that since the burning of Smyrna the United States has spent $18,000,000 in relief work in the Near East. Of this sum $5,000,000 represented gifts of individual citizens, the remainder being distributed through official or semi-official such as the Near East Relief and the American Red Cross. The total is reported to be eight times the amount received from all other countries combined. Asia Minor, Syria, Palestine, Armenia and Persia were the beneficiaries. In recognition of their efforts the Greek government has conferred the cross of St. Xavier, the highest civil honor, on one hundred members of the American relief missions.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

After all, the death of Villa was surprising, but surprising only because the man had drifted out of public view. When he was thought of at all it was as a reformed renegade, engaged in honest industry, living down the memory of his career.

Villa was a truly remarkable man. With education he would have been a lasting force in Mexico. He was a murderer, a vulgar thief on occasion, but he had courage, and the quality of leadership.

While in command of troops he was the incarnation of ferocity. Human life, including his own, seemed as of no value. He made countless enemies who gladly would have slain him, but he inspired a fear that for years held them in check.

Figuratively he lived by the sword and died by the sword, thus violating no tradition in his passing.

Villa would quickly have been forgotten save that he left considerable property over which there is promise of prolonged and spectacular squabbling.

The arrest of a prominent criminal lawyer of New York on the charge of bribery presents something new. A sort of theory exists that, however reprehensible bribery may be generally, indulgence in it is among the privileges of the criminal lawyer, being but one of the tricks of which he has a bagful.

If the lawyer in this case were to be sent to jail, or something like that, others of his class might feel impelled to change their tactics.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE BORROWING BROTHERHOOD

"Mom, I have to have a new pair of sneakers."

"Sneakers? Why? What for? You had a new pair the beginning of the month. You can't have worn them out by now."

"I didn't get a chance to wear them out. Somebody won them."

"What are you talking about?"

"I took my sneakers up to the club and when I went to put them on last Saturday I didn't have any to put on. Somebody else had gotten there first I guess."

"Where did you put them? If you'd put them in your locker that couldn't happen."

"Yes it could. I did put them in my locker, but at the club it's first come, best dressed. Somebody beat me to it."

"Are you trying to tell me that you youngsters use one another's clothes without even asking for them? I never heard of such a thing."

"Why, mon, that's nothing. All the members use each other's things. That's what belonging to the club means. If you're stingy with your things you're a crab."

"Indeed," said the mother icily. "And if you take what does not belong to you, what are you in this club for?"

"Oh, now, mom. Don't put it that way."

"That's the only way I see it. Your shoes belonged to you. I cannot imagine any properly brought up child using another child's shoes, not for a minute. I hope you haven't done that sort of thing?"

"What can I do if I get there and find that I haven't a sweater? Haven't I got to take what's left? I got to be a good sport, haven't I?"

"No, if wearing another person's clothes is being a good sport, you haven't," said mother grimly.

"Then I might just as well resign from the club," said the lad gloomily.

"Then resign," said mother. "I'll replace the things your friends have borrowed. I'll sew your name into them or stamp it on them so they can read it without straining their eyes. You'll keep your tennis outfit in the hall closet and carry it back and forth to the courts or you needn't play tennis."

"Oh, mom. That's making a crab out of me."

"All right. I have more respect for the crab that pinches the impertinent person who gets in its way than I have for the impertinent person. I've made up my mind now, that you respect other folks' belongings and permit them to respect yours. That's all about it."

"O, gee, mom."

But his outfit reposes in the hall closet. He no longer belongs to the borrowing brotherhood.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The funny part seems to be that it isn't so very entertaining to be hard-boiled. That is the moral—one of the morals—that Dr. L. L. Lumsden finds.

Lumsden is that enthusiast in the federal government who is trying to better the health of the folks in the rural districts. Some years ago he made the acquaintance of the boss of a mill, isolated in a distant state.

"He was tough," said Doc Lumsden. "Hard as a hammer-head. He had come up from the bottom and he acted like it. He laughed at most things and sneered at the rest. Especially mercy and kindness."

But he did not seem to be happy, for all that hard-egg laughter. But they got to be fairly good friends, and Lumsden told him of this experiment that he was making on unpromising boy and girl material. The boss of the mill consented, finally, that an effort should be made to better his own little work people.

"It's a good investment," Lumsden told him, in despair of getting the idea over in any other way. Not long ago Lumsden re-visited the mill town. The hard one, grinning all over, with a look of human happiness in his eyes, led him into a schoolroom where four hundred little boys and girls sat at their desks. They were fat, sassy, bright eyed, smart. The ex-hard one said:

"This is Doc Lumsden. Say how-de-do to him."

The four hundred snapped to their feet, their hands at a salute. They cracked at him in chorus:

"How are you, Doc-tor Lumsden. How do you feel today?"

It took Doc Lumsden off his feet. So did the wallop the hard one hit him between the shoulders. The man had changed. He had become happy.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS,
President American Society for Thrift.

The benefits of thrift are by no means limited to material matters. The effects on the character, the development of moral stamina and the inspiration of right living are among the good fruits of thrift that cannot be measured by the standard of dollars and cents. "Save and teach all you are interested in to save;" wrote Thomas Jefferson, "thus pave the way for moral and material success."

S. W. STRAUS

Back of all success in life must be character. No one ever has really succeeded without it. By success is not meant alone the accomplishment of great deeds. A good life is a successful one. A good housewife is a success. A good mother is a success. A good citizen is a success. And when one analyses the success of those who have been the great leaders of thought and action one finds that notwithstanding tremendous mental power and broad vision, they possessed the outstanding feature of character. How important for example, was this fact apparent in the cases of such men as Lincoln, Franklin, Jefferson and Washington.

Our characters are moulded by our daily habits. The young man for example who charts his career and then adheres strictly to his plans will succeed. This means that every day he must overcome obstacles and resist temptations.

Thrift does not mean alone the saving of money. Your bank-book or your investment strong box do not entirely tell the story of the value of your thrift. There is something in the heart and in the brain that are even of greater value.

Practice thrift, not alone because of the rainy day or for the period of old age, but for all it will mean to you in the days of activity and progress as well.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY, July 27 (U. P.).—Already the air is beginning to hum with talk of football, as early comers reach the campus and old-timers gather. Coach Andy Smith fears possible injury of some of his stars, so is considering running in subs and probably will use his entire line-up during the game, in order to keep his men in the pink of condition for later contests, especially that with Stanford.

PRESIDENT FALLS FOR ADVERTISING OF OLD MYTH

[By Associated Press]

EUGENE, Ore., July 27.—President Harding's apparent acceptance, in his address at the opening of the Oregon Trail Highway at Meacham, of the discredited legend of Marcus Whitman's "saving Oregon" is likely to damage the historians' long fight against the acceptance of this myth as the truth—in the opinion of Dr. Joseph Schafer, superintendent of the Wisconsin State Historical Society—who for twenty years was head of the history department of the University of Oregon.

Dr. Schafer, who is the author of several books on Northwestern and Pacific Coast history, and has conducted researchers into the history of the Oregon boundary dispute between the United States and Great Britain, said:

"The thoughtful citizen will not be disposed to find fault with the president for ultilizing in his Meacham address the beautiful and dramatic legend of how Whitman 'saved Oregon.' To criticise him for doing so as on historical grounds one would criticize the ordinary lecturer would be to misapprehend the conditions under which such incidental addresses necessarily made by the president, whose time on the trip is engrossed with a multitude of duties that rigorously exclude the preparation of speeches. Addresses on questions of policy, of course, are prepared by him in advance. For such others as seem to be called for by local situations, like the one at Meacham, he is compelled to depend upon others.

"In the present case it is clear that someone who was interested in exploiting as if it were historical the long-exploited myth about Whitman saving Oregon, obtained the president's ear and probably placed the typed manuscript of the address in his hand. By doing this, and persuading the president to read it, that person assuredly scored the season's greatest feat in advertising. For, notwithstanding the president's oral statement that some doubted the truth of the story he was about to present, he did in fact present it as history, and his speech, printed because it was his, will pass with millions of people as a fully authenticated historical narrative. In all probability a new brood of books on western history, carrying the president's Meacham speech by way of restoring in new form the long-discredited Whitman myth, will be one result. Inasmuch as it has required half a century of controversy and a vast expenditure of effort on the part of defenders and opponents alike, to eradicate the legend from the histories, this, if it should happen, would be an unfortunate circumstance. For it goes without saying that historically-minded men and women will not accept fiction for fact, though all love the memory of Dr. Whitman for his splendid Christian character and for the achievements which can be rightly credited to him.

"The incident suggests that if the president is likely to require other addresses of a local or regional character, the managers of his progress ought to single out, for the responsibility of historical adviser, that one of his literary entourage who is best equipped with historical scholarship and who is familiar with the literature of American history. Anyone who has seen the late Edward Gaylord Bourne's 'The Legend of Marcus Whitman' would unhesitatingly have advised against the acceptance by the president of the paper supplied to him for the Meacham occasion."

THE RUBE

There's the fellow who follows the market,
And watches the bulls and the bears,
Whose interest lies in the things that he buys,
In bonds and in stocks and in shares.
We could get along nicely without him,
And the world keep its balance somehow,
But there's one man I know I should hate to see go,
That's the fellow who follows the plow.

There's the fellow who follows the races,
With raiment and diamonds loud,
And the fan who knows all of the game of baseball,
And the fellow who follows the crowd.
There's the fellow who follows the oil game,
The list of them all long enow,
But of that class or this there's just one we should miss,
That's the fellow who follows the plow.

He's a hick and a rube, without question,
And his hair's full of hayseed and straw,
With his hickory shirt in the dust and the dirt,
And his manners are uncouth and raw.
But when it comes grub-time, remember
He's the fellow who gives us the chow,
And we may think him small, but he's boss of us all
The fellow who follows the plow.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

When we old stagers were boys, we thrilled over Jules Verne's "Around the World in 80 Days," and wondered how it could be done. Not long ago, a well-known motion picture actor presented a serial story (filmed in Hollywood?) entitled, "Around the World in 18 Days." Now I see that Col. Saccadura Cabral, noted Portugese aviator, who made a very successful flight from Lisbon to Rio de Janeiro, announces that soon a flyer may be able to encircle the globe in 280 hours. The world sure do move, and mighty fast, at that.

It used to be remarked that the eagle was made to scream very loudly and often in our little neighbor to the east, which has recently been swallowed whole by the big condor to the south. There was the eagle rock itself, Eagle Rock city, Eagle Rock park, Eagle Rock avenue, Eagle Rock road, and Eagle avenue. Reminds me of a flock of big Mississippi steamboats I saw many years ago at St. Louis. Among them were the Bald Eagle, the Spread Eagle, the Golden Eagle and the Black Eagle.

During and just after the Civil war the term, "Copperhead" was one of particular opprobrium among loyal people in the north. And there sure was a host of the breed all through the region north of Mason and Dixon's line. It applied to a person who, while enjoying all the privileges and benefits of the United States government and of his state, yet talked, worked and sometimes committed untold outrages, even murder, upon helpless families of soldiers absent at the front, fighting in the Union armies. The great treasonable organization known as "Knights of the Golden Circle," numbered many thousands of adherents in the states of Illinois and Indiana in particular, and all of these were dubbed Copperhead. Where I lived most of my life, in eastern Illinois, the tribe was particularly virulent. In Charleston, Coles county, several wounded Union soldiers home on furlough were murdered in a riot staged by a band of these traitors.

Some of these persons, however, were not of the violent, murderous character of the ones responsible for the outrages noted above, but really had conscientious scruples against the war, believing the south to be right, but contenting themselves with merely verbal protests. I knew one man of this character, really a thorough Christian gentleman, who was noted for his kindly character and many charitable deeds. He lived by the national road and one night a man his wife and three children stopped at his home, telling a pitiful story of how they were trying to reach relatives in Missouri, but had great trouble in finding places to stop at night, even though pay for the care of themselves and team was offered. At the conclusion of the man's story his wife exclaimed bitterly, "If we'd been the vilest Copperheads, we couldn't have received worse treatment than we have met with at some places where we tried to stop." The old gentleman merely smiled at her vehemence and did all in his power to make the wayfarers comfortable. The next morning his wife gave them a good breakfast and he helped the man hitch up and get away. Just as the start was made he said to the man, after payment had been offered and refused, "Have you any fault to find with the way you and your family have been entertained?" "Most certainly not," was the surprised reply. "Well," was the rejoinder, "I am one of those despised Copperheads your wife referred to last night. Try to think a little better of us hereafter." "I certainly will," was the fervent reply of the man as he went on his way. Another Copperhead I came to know very well in the years following the war was a little Englishman, named Hornbrook, who was quite active in much of the deviltry going on. He afterward became a most exemplary citizen, however, and a fine farmer. He made the most capable chairman of our county board of supervisors in years and he was one of the best friends I had. I commended him more than once in my Republican newspaper for his fairness and breadth of vision, though he was a most uncompromising Democrat. He always smoked his bacon and hams with sassafras wood and the flavor was rarely good. He died at the good old age of 92. The bitterness against men of his class has long since died away completely.

Kipling sounded a needed warning in his famous poem, "Lest We Forget." Forgetting is one of the greatest faults of the American as well as the English people. In the olden days of saloon domination the people of a city would occasionally become so outraged and horrified by the persistent and open violations of the law, which every saloon keeper persisted in, generally culminating in a murder or two, that they would rise in their might and wipe out the hell holes. But in a year or two, the most of them would forget all about it, and back into power the malefactors would come, to flourish and defy the laws as well as public decency, until other outrageous crimes again aroused the patient public.

The whole country was horrified 25 or 30 years ago by disclosures of wholesale adulterations of food and drink, more or less poisonous, by which the adulterators made vast fortunes, and the final outcome was the pure food and drugs act. It was pretty well enforced for a few years and many brazen violators, who thought more of ill-gotten gains than of human health and life, were punished, but of late adulterations are becoming more and more open and common. The people have forgotten and it will take a great calamity, such as the wholesale poisoning of consumers using "doctored" articles of food, to bring about general enforcement of the act again.

Five years ago the slightest disrespect shown to Old Glory or any treasonable utterance against the government was apt to arouse instantly an uncontrollable mob and the traitor suffered death or serious injury almost certainly. While I am glad that the unreasoning mob spirit is no longer in evidence, yet we are forgetting to resent the most outrageous utterances against our government. Sedition is spouted on street corners and in halls, and while the police arrest many of the traitors, the public in general seems quite indifferent.

Week by week, the awful death toll from preventable auto accidents mounts higher and higher. Police judges occasionally wax very indignant, for publication, and declare every violator of the traffic laws who exceeds certain speed limits will certainly be jailed; no exceptions. But speeders with a pull are let go or else given suspended sentences, and soon the sentencing to jail ceases until fatal crashes again become common, when a new spasm of law enforcement is seen. Just think of it, 300 deaths in Los Angeles county thus far this year, not far from two a day. If police judges would uniformly adopt a system of law enforcement, severe enough to deter all but the most reckless, and stick to it, day in and day out, this wholesale violation of law would almost cease. The plain, bald truth of the matter is that the police judges of the state have it within their power to practically end this harvest of death by constantly imposing severe sentences and refusing to heed any "pulls." And why will they not do it? Because of the fatal habit of soon forgetting the necessity, not to again realize it until a particularly shocking fatality occurs.

"God of our fathers, protect us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget!"

It was some time in the 90's when the newspapers began carrying stories of the bold and defiant statements of one Dr. Roedermund of Chicago, who ridiculed the germ theory, then beginning to attract notice. He said he would be willing to eat the most deadly germs any fool doctor set before him and thus disprove the statements that the said germs were really the causes of various diseases. He made his word good in one respect by boldly devouring what one germ theory advocate declared was a mass of smallpox germs, sure to kill the blasphemous wretch who consumed them and to spread contagion to all who touched his body. But Dr. Roedermund calmly refused to fall over dead after partaking of his diet of smallpox germs, but he boldly walked from the room and disappeared. It was given out that he was to visit relatives in Terre Haute, Ind., 16 miles from where I lived then, and great was the excitement raised. Germ theorists declared he would spread a trail of smallpox contagion wherever he went and warned the Terre Haute authorities to arrest this bold, death-defying, death-spreading doctor. The police officers watched all the incoming trains but they were so fearful of subjecting themselves to the dread contagion that they must have done it half-heartedly, for Roedermund slipped in and out of Terre Haute with little trouble. As the days passed by and no dreadful, wide-spread scourge of smallpox appeared, not even one case, in the district Roedermund traveled over, the sensation soon died down.
